What is a double glazed glass roof?

Our custom glass roofs are ideal for creating glazed extensions or aluminium conservatories, with a lean-to or pitched glass roof sat above fixed frame windows and/or bifold or sliding doors. Framed with thermally broken aluminium rafters the double glazed glass roofs are a modern alternative to traditional glass roofs.

What type of glass is used in roofing systems?

Strengthened glass is, therefore, used in roofing systems. Glass used in most applications has multiple panels in its construction. Double or triple panel glass is good for clear ceilings. The choice of double or triple panes depends on the degree of energy efficiency that you want to achieve.

What is a glass roof system?

Each glass roof system is designed and manufactured to order to the exact specification of a project, whether you need a roof lantern or roof light to sit on top of the flat roof of a renovation or a custom-engineered solution for a glass extension.

What is a double glass façade?

These envelopes can be formed as two distinct elements or as multiple layers of combined glazing for a performative or visual affect. Double glass façades combine different materials around unique framing, installation methods and structural support.

Is a glass roof worth the cost?

Compared to all other clear roofing options, glass is by far the costliest. If you have the budget then a glass roof delivers a premium look but it is worth weighing up average costs early in the design process. At more than double the cost of Polycarbonate sheeting, a glass roof is out of reach for many end users.
